

Get ready for Culinology 101!

WEST WINDSOR — Mercer County Community College and Rutgers University have agreed to a new partnership that would let students transfer credits for a program called Culinology.

Students completing an associate's degree in Culinology at MCCC will be able to transfer up to 74 credits to Rutgers toward a B.S. in food science, and will have the opportunity to work toward certification with the Research Chefs Association, which trademarked the Culinology name.

Culinology blends the disciplines of food science and the culinary arts.

For more information about all MCCC hospitality programs call (609) 570-3447 or 570-3579 or visit mccc.edu/hrim/index.shtml.

— STAFF REPORT

