LAWRENCEVILLE: Mercer County Community College's Honors Introduction to Literature: Poetry class invites the community to participate in an open discussion on poems selected from past centuries through the modern day on Thursday, April 30, 12:30-2:00 p.m. Professor Fran Davidson, who teaches the class, is collaborating again this year with the Lawrence Library to provide a fruitful give and take dialogue between her students and the audience. Davidson hopes that this cross-generational discussion will allow all ages to connect and develop a greater understanding of how our life experiences inform and enrich our interpretations of poetry.

Copies of the poems to be discussed can be picked up at the Library's Reference Desk beginning Monday, April 20. The library is located at 2751 Brunswick Pike (Bus. Route One), Lawrenceville. For more information about this and other library programs, call 609-989-6920 or visit www.mcl.org.
