

LUCAS KELLY

Lucas Kelly wins Best in Show Utrecht Award

WEST WINDSOR — The Gallery at Mercer County Community College announced this week the award winners for “Mercer County Artists 2008.”

The exhibit, which runs through April 3, features 64 works by 48 artists who live, work or study in Mercer County. The annual exhibit, a collaboration between the college and the Mercer County Cultural and Heritage Commission, is under the direction of curator Tricia Fagan and is located on the second floor of the Communications Building on Mercer’s West Windsor campus at 1200 Old Trenton Road.

Winner of the Best in Show Utrecht Award of Excellence was Lucas Kelly of Lawrenceville for his watercolor, “Study for Suitcase and Atoms.” Kelly received a $500 gift certificate from Utrecht Paint Supplies in Cranbury.

The Juror’s Choice Award went to Arlene Milgram of Ewing for “Time to Move On.”

Winners of the Purchase Awards, chosen by representatives from the Mercer County Cultural and Heritage Commission, were Victoria Chu Moy of Princeton for “Klezmer Man”; Joanne Donnelly of Yardley, Pa. for “Chinoiserie”; Barbara Fine of Allentown for “Tuesday Morning”; Judy Kaye of West Windsor for “Lonely Trees”; Susan Luty of Hightstown for “Geomorphic Form 2: Snow on the Mountain”; and Bonnie Randall of Ewing for “Secluded Twilight.”

Honorable mentions were awarded to six artists: Jeff Belpanno of Hightstown for “Lady at the Shore”; Victoria Chu Moy of Princeton for “Klezmer Man” (which also won a Purchase Award); Joe Fadule of Robbinsville for “Amaryllis and Chief”; Matt Lucash of Robbinsville for “Enchanted Unicorn”; Barbara Fine of Allentown for “Thursday Morning”; and Chad Thompson of Hamilton for “1957.”

The West Windsor Arts Council selected two township residents for awards: Stephanie Mandelbaum for “Analysis” and Natosha McVeigh for “Soul Searching.”
